Genestia Group supports wxWindows

Genestia Group, Inc - Neoxen Systems, a leading software supplier of distributed business solutions, has today announced its support for wxWindows - a multiplatform GUI library.

This technology adoption will continue Genestia's firm commitment to its strategic business areas. Decision to incorporate wxWindows as a strategic tool for its Professional Services complements and broadens the corporate offerings.

"This is an important step in Genestia's actions to execute our strategies. We are fully committed ourselves to extend our offerings in order to provide our customers the most valuable assistance in their needs. This commitment is a logical step in our efforts to expand our technology base for the benefit of our customers. ", tells Mr Esa Tervo, Chief Executive Officer of Genestia. "wxWindows is a proven and widely accepted platform. It allows us to extend our Windows solutions to Linux, Unix and MacOS. With this step we are able to provide true freedom of choice for our customers."

wxWindows is free, well-established, well-documented, and very broad in its coverage of GUI functionality. It has some extras that make it stand out from the crowd, such as the many convenience dialogs, built-in HTML display and printing, virtual filesystems, easy-to-use OLE automation controller class, Open GL support, and many other features that make it easier to write modern and user-friendly applications.
